

PROFILE

Bee has long believed that schools are, first and foremost, human places—and that leadership begins with how we listen, notice, and choose to show up. People matter and meaningful change is possible even in the most uncertain, complex and pressured environments.

With over 25 years' experience as an educator and school leader, Bee has worked across the UK and internationally, living and leading in Egypt, China, Myanmar, and now Taiwan. These experiences—often shaped by uncertainty, transition, and cultural complexity—have given her a deep respect for the emotional and relational realities of schools and leadership within.

Her coaching style is calm, intuitive, compassionate, and gently challenging. She listens beyond words, attuned to the whole person and the wider system in which they lead. Bee has a gift for helping leaders slow down, make sense of complexity, and find clarity amid competing demands—so their leadership feels grounded, authentic, and sustainable.

Bee works in close partnership with school leaders to support wise decision-making, strong boundaries, and a renewed sense of self-trust and authority. Her focus is not on fixing, but on creating space for leaders to reconnect with purpose, courage, and humanity.

Describing herself as a Mixologist (mocktails included), Bee invites leaders to blend insight, humour, compassion and creativity, and to step into the true colours and flavours of the leaders they are becoming.
